TOM VAUGHAN HOME
Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas.

Owner: Mrs. Tom Vaughan

Date of Erection: Approximately 1852

Architect: Unknown

Builder: Parmonia Herron

Present Condition: Good; slave kitchen is now used for garage. Additions made at front of house.

Number of Stories: Two

Materials of Construction: Adobe with river gravel.

Additional Data:

This house was built by Parmonia Herron, son of Parson Herron, and was built of adobe with river gravel, the walls being approximately 18" thick. The roof was originally wood shingles, but is now covered with galvanized iron. From the front the house appears to be only one story, but in reality it is two stories, having been built on a decided slope.

Each floor includes three rooms and a hall; the rooms are approximately 16' square. Fireplace mantels are all built of walnut.

The old slave kitchen was built in the rear of the main house, and was constructed of the same materials as the house itself.

The main house has lost much of its charm, the exterior having been recently covered with a coat of light brown stucco. The slave kitchen has been altered and is now being used as a garage, but still retains much of its original charm and character.

This information was secured from Mrs. Tom Vaughan of Seguin, Texas.
